Title:

Sounds in The Air: Sound Design, How Sound Can Help Construct the World in Film

Abstract:

An introduction to how sound is used in film to shape the space inside the world of film. Explore what sounds you associate to specific places such as; a big city, a forest or a duck pond. How some sounds can affect moods and how sound can focus attention to a specific person, place or thing in a film. Watch the video then try the listening activity.

Target Audience:

K – 2nd grade, 3rd-6th grade, Family Learning

Learning Objectives/Outcomes:

By using this Digital DIY Curriculum you will learn how sounds can be used to define a place and affect mood and focus. Through the activity you will learn an exercise to strengthen your listening skills and expand your audio perception of the world around you.
